Gallup, May 28.—"Wait till you see the electric launches, the bower arched over the lake stocked with perch, bass and the choicest of the many tribe, to say nothing of Sam Brown's elegant transfers to the greatest reservoir three miles eastward. Why, you Albuquerqueans, we are not in it with it!" Thus spoke an enthusiast who contributed to a fund for aggregating something like $400 to defray Surveyor Lewis' expense in making a survey of the extent of land covered in view of a dam being constructed at "Hog Back," the cost of the latter as well as the extent of the country capable of irrigation from water impounded by the creation of a dam as above. There will be damages incurred by the storage and the railroad route into Gallup will necessarily be diverted, though at the expense of the company. Seven and three-quarters have spent two weeks on the survey, and will require ten more days. A complete report will be submitted to the committee that made the expense fund, which will forward to eastern capitalists. Should they look upon the scheme with favor, many hundred thousand dollars will be brought into the country and a grand development more immediately tributary to Gallup will be the outcome.

On last Sunday, with substitutes for Poorman and Vorles, trailup lost to Fort Wingate, on the latter's grounds, 12 to 10. Yet they do not falter in their determination to win the pennant. They will lose Poorman, catcher, owing to the latter's illness. An effort will be made to bring the Fort Wingate and Winslow clubs here on the Fourth.

Foundation on the Caledonian building partially laid. The structure will be two stories and cost over $8,000.

John Bowes, who attended the university a year ago, is a pupil in the Central School of Mines.

School term closes on Friday. Mrs. C. B. Smith, Miss Martin, Mrs. W. H. Williams and Principal D. M. Richards will be retained. The rates were voted $40 per month, Mr. Williams $80 and Mr. Richards $125. The next term will open in the new building early in September.

John Kennedy has recovered and it is safe to say he will not imitate the Wallapah kids who practice jumping care a Kingman and Hackberry.

Miss Agnes Green, of Silver City, will succeed Miss Ella Hawks at the Gibson school, the latter possibly taking a school near Flagstaff.

A PENSION DECISION

Washington, May 28.—Before Sublock, this morning, General Sherman, the Secretary of War, began to arrange the names to the Arlington, in which the remains of the secretary of state lay. Most of the fleet passes, however, were sent to the white house, where the service was to be held. Mrs. Gresham, broken in spirit, exhausted long vigils and overcome with grief, was in such a nervous state that her daughter and son prevailed upon her not to undertake the trying ordeal of attending services at the white house. At 11 o'clock, therefore, the doors were closed and the stricken family left with their bier. For almost thirty minutes they remained biding their last leave. Meantime, without the preparations were being made for a military burial. At 12 o'clock the doors of the room where the remains lay were opened and the family retired to the rear apartment. Mrs. Gresham, in a agony of grief, was most distressed from the time her daughter often, followed by her daughter Mrs. Andrews, sister Mrs. McVean, and Captain Fuller.

At 12:45 President Cleveland arrived at the White House in a carriage, accompanied by Col. Wilson. The crowd craned their necks and camera enthusiasts, who seemed unconscious of the solemnity of the occasion, attempted to secure snapshots. The president wore a black frock coat, and he looked far from well as he ascended the broad stone steps with some difficulty.

At 1:45 five redoubtably trumpeters marched up the Fayette place and stationed themselves outside the line of mounted police to give the signal when the corteges departed. Thirty seconds later a horse drawn by two coal black horses drew up at the door. The president followed by members of the cabinet descended the steps and stood with uncovered heads while eight artillery men carried the casket with slow and solemn tread between them. The casket was shrouded completely in the folds of the American flag, and the stars and stripes could hardly be discerned for flowers banked up on the casket. The artillerymen walked beside the bier as it drew away, halting at the corner until the president and members of the cabinet had taken their positions.

The funeral procession moved slowly to the white house, flanked on either side by a line of policemen, behind whom were thousands of people, many with bowed and uncovered heads. The casket, preceded by the president and cabinet, was borne by the artillerymen to the east room, where the services took place. The east room was elaborately festooned for the solemn occasion. Seats were reserved for the immediate kindred of the dead man, for the president and Mrs. Cleveland and for members of the cabinet and their wives. Within the solemn black robes circle stood standards for the catafalque resting on a large black seal ring. At the upper end of the place where the catafalque was to rest stood a large wreath bearing the cards of the president and Mrs. Cleveland. It was of white roses and white rhododendron tied with white ribbons. Alongside this was another smaller wreath from the state department of white and red roses with sage palms and calls lilies tied with purple ribbon. Conspicuous for its rare beauty was a floral tribute from foreign representatives. It was in the form of a large crescent wreath of orchids and lilies of the valley, American beauty roses and carnations tied with a bow of gold ribbon with the words "diplomatic corps" in gold letters thereon.

By 10:45 in the vast East room was nearly filled. All the members of the diplomatic body were apparently in attendance except Minister Weckerlin, of the Netherlands, who is absent from Washington. Members of the supreme court came in singly. Mr. Thurber, the president's private secretary, gave his address. Field who was very feeble indeed, to do just what is claimed for him and the dealer whose name is attached therewith will be glad to tell you more of them. Sold at Dr. Thos. H. Burgess & Son's Drug Store.

Old Nine Found.
Referring to the old nine supposed to have been talonily rich located somewhere at no great distance from the old mission, St. Xavier, in the Catalina mountains, and worked by the Jesuit priests, mention of which is made in the old church records, the Star says: "For years many parties have been hunting this same mine, but have never succeeded, until last week when Mr. Gibson, a rancher, who had been hunting, accidentally discovered it. It is supposed to be very rich in ore, one tunnel extending into it being eleven feet in width and one in height, showing traces of where rich pockets have been. Steps will be taken immediately to develop. Tombstone Prospector."

Popular Mayor.
Those of our local base ball team who visited Corrillo last Sunday and witnessed the "Free Concert" boys troupe the strong aggregation of players from the territorial capital, speak in loud praise of the treatment extended to them by Mayor Lyon and other Corrillites. Alpinequerque always has a tender, fatherly love for the little, but lively neighboring town, and this Corrillo has every reason to believe that this paper was instrumental in bringing about the present existing good wishes for the prosperity of each other.

Friend's Tournament.
Secretary Shum of the New Mexico Association of Volunteer Firemen, headquarters at Santa Fe, writing to the members of the association in this city, states that the firemen and citizens of the capital are looking forward to a grand and glorious time at the approaching tournament and convention of the association, which convenes in Santa Fe on July 3 and continues for three days. The secretary sends a batch of dodgers upon which is printed the list of events, and asks that they be distributed. He also states that the large posters, offering extraordinary inducements to visitors to visit Santa Fe on the glorious Fourth and help the territorial firemen to entertain the people, will be issued in a few days.

A few moments before 10 o'clock the family of the deceased, except Mrs. Gresham, were ushered into the green room, whence through an open doorway they had a plain view of the catafalque.

At a sign from Col. Wilson, the crowd in the center divided and the casket, borne by eight stalwart sergeants of the Fourth artillery, under command of Capt. Charles O. Hall, of the 10th infantry, was borne to the East room and placed upon its supports. Floral tributes were gathered by ushers and heaped in profuse profusion upon the black surface of the casket.

As the crowd divided and the President and the cabinet entered, President Cleveland headed the party with Mrs. Cleveland on his arm. They took their places at the head of the casket at the right of the south windows. Bishop Hale stepped forward and a hush fell upon the company, and in the clear voice of the eloquent rang out the words, "All is not the respects in which life is."

The service was remarkably simple and free from ostentation. It was the full formal service of the Methodist Episcopal church, practically the same as that of the Church of England. The psalm singing sweetly, Cardinal Newman's hymn "Lord kindly light." The entire service lasted but fifteen minutes. The bishop stepped forward after inviting those who cared to do so to look upon the face of the eminent deceased. Of this in silence every one in the room took a vestige.

The casket remained open in the foyer.

HONORING OLD DAD.

Washington, May 28.—Secretary Gresham died at 1:15 o'clock this morning.

At 12:45 General Secretary Cleveland was dying.

His death was considered only a question of moments. His pulse was so rapid and feeble that it could hardly be discerned.

Nitro-glycerine and strychnine had been constantly administered to stanch the action of the heart.

His wife, daughter and son-in-law were at the bedside.

At 11 o'clock he began to fail rapidly.

At 12 o'clock he ceased talking, and the doctor had retired to the same room.

From that time on no word came from the sick room until 1:15 o'clock, when it was announced that the end had come.

SONGS OF ORATION.

The remains of Secretary of State Gresham have been embalmed. The funeral arrangements are dependent upon the wishes of Mrs. Gresham, and owing to the depression and grief following the death of her husband, the details of place and time of interment have been left until late in the day. The present purpose of the friends of the family are to have the funeral train leave Washington tomorrow. A special train will be provided, one car to bear the remains and another for Mrs. Gresham and immediate relatives. These arrangements, however, are subject to changes as Mrs. Gresham may desire.

At 1:45 the funeral train left the station shortly before noon. When the bier was drawn up to the sidewalk the marine band played "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

FOUND GUITY.

Special to Citizen.

Washington, May 29.—Francisco Gonzales Barriga, Antonio Gonzales Barriga, Laureano Alvaro, and Patricio Valencia, have been found guilty in the first degree in the number of Francisco Chaves, charged in the indictment. The case went to the jury at 10 p.m. yesterday and was rendered at 1 p.m. today.

Friends of law and order are elated over the verdict. The usual motion for a new trial and arrest of judgment was given and will be heard June 8.

TRAFFIC CHANGES.

Omaha, Neb., May 29.—It is the talk among circles that the alliance of the Northern Pacific with the Great Northern is likely to bring about changes in the traffic contract with the Burlington, and it may be necessary for the Burlington & Missouri River to protect its western interests by purchasing the Northern Pacific tracks west of Billings in order to gain entrance into the Northwest country.

It is understood the company has a corps of surveyors already in the field running a line west of Billings. Whether the objective point is Seattle it is hard to determine.

PENSION DECISION.

Washington, May 29.—Assistant Secretary Reynolds has decided that where a widow is denied or deprived of a pension by reason of open adultery, the pension may be allowed the minor children or children of a soldier under 16 years of age, in the same manner as if the widow's right to the pension had terminated by death.

HABERS.

On next Sunday afternoon, June 2, the gentlemen's Driving association will give half a dozen trotting and running races at the fair grounds, and will hold their alternate Sunday, for the purpose of securing funds with which to pay off their debts. President Weaver assures the Citizens that the events will be interesting.

TRADE STATE DEPARTMENT.

The state department was technically closed to-day, admission being denied all visitors, although the entire force of employees were kept in waiting to assist in the discharge of formalities attending upon the notification to foreign powers of the nation's loss.

The president, accompanied by Mrs. Cleveland, came to the white house about 10:30 and was immediately waited upon by Acting Secretary Uh. An official order was prepared closing the executive departments on the day appointed for the funeral. The president and Mrs. Cleveland called at the Arlington at 11 o'clock to see members of Secretary Gresham's family and tender sympathy. They drove over from the white house in an open carriage with no attendants but the driver on the box.

Attorney General Olney and Secretaries Lamont and Herbert arrived about the same time to confer on arrangements for the funeral. It was arranged that the funeral services be conducted in the east room of the white house to-morrow at 10:45.
